Appeal Information for Students Ineligible to Enroll
College of Arts and Science, University of Missouri

Students may be considered academically ineligible to enroll if they meet one of the following conditions: they have a term GPA less than 1.0 or the most recent academic action was final probation and the term or cumulative GPA was less than 2.0. When a student meets any of those conditions, they are considered ineligible to enroll.

Our office carefully reviews each individual student's record before dismissing the student from the College of Arts and Science. Students may appeal to re-enroll; however, because many appeals are not approved, students should immediately begin considering other options.

Students who decide to appeal the dismissal in order to return to the College of Arts and Science this coming semester must submit an appeal to the Committee on Academic Appeals. Please note that if you are an undecided/exploring student, your appeal for re-enrollment may be reviewed by the Discovery Center.

There are two review deadlines for Fall 2020 enrollment: Friday, July 10 and Wednesday, August 12. No late appeals will be reviewed, as we want students to have sufficient time to enroll for fall coursework at MU or elsewhere as appropriate.

Appeals should be honest and thorough. Students are strongly encouraged to write and save a copy of their appeal before submitting. While we understand the extraordinary circumstances that impacted many students this past semester, we want to ensure that continuation for the Fall 2020 semester is in the student’s best interest.

Submit your appeal via this link.
