

The Arts and Science staff Network Board serves as a channel of communication among members of the non-academic staff in the College of Arts and Science, as an advisory group to the Dean of the College, and as a liaison to similar groups outside the college. The Network strives to develop non-academic staff as a human resource; to enhance cooperation and the exchange of information; to foster continued education and professional development; and to serve as a representative body making known the interests of the staff.
